

Directors' Remuneration in respect of Service Standards

1. Section 42C of the Electricity Act 1989 (as amended) requires a licensed distribution company which provides price-regulated services to disclose whether or not it links the remuneration of the directors of the company to any levels of customer service achieved by the company, and to give details of how any such links affect that remuneration.
2. This statement contains the necessary disclosures in respect of Eastern Power Networks plc, London Power Networks plc and South Eastern Power Networks plc for the calendar year ending 31 December 2017.

There are direct links between the performance of UK Power Networks, including customer service, and Basil Scarsella's base salary and incentive plans which are discretionary as determined by the shareholders of UK Power Networks Holdings Limited.

5. Customer service is an integral part of UK Power Networks' annual incentive plan, in which the majority of employees (including Basil Scarsella) participate.

5.1 UK Power Networks' annual incentive plan

Bonus schemes continue the theme of customer service, safety and financial performance and reliability. The overall effect is to create a balanced scorecard of measures to incentivise improved performance across all areas of operation. This approach, with the measures identified, provides a real focus for all staff in terms of linking performance and pay.

In assessing the outcome for the year, many of the targets relate to published financial accounts, published regulatory standards of performance and other statutory returns, which are covered by appropriate levels of quality assurance including external audits where applicable.
